Improved Facilities Needed For State's Mentally Ill Children

Improvement of state hospital facilities for mentally ill children is urgently needed in Michigan today, according to Mrs. Edward F. Latulip, State Legislative Chairman of the American Association of University Women. This was disclosed in the AAUW "Survey to Determine Needed Legislation concerning the Hospitalization of Mentally Ill Children" in which 15 AAUW branches searched out the facts and evaluated them objectively. The Michigan Probate Judges Association is joining with AAUW in a state wide program to carry these needs to the public.

Grayling County Avalanche Thursday, February 11, 1960

children are housed with adults; in state hospital this is a problem. Children need a complex service, the report continues, education, recreation, the development of situations which help them learn to live together. This, it states, requires the teamwork of many kinds of personnel, personnel especially trained to care for children. But according to the minimum standards of the American Psychiatric Association, the Survey says, Michigan's hospitals are badly understaffed.

"Because the children at Hawthorn Center, Lafayette Clinic and Children's Psychiatric Hospital at the University of Michigan receive excellent care, and treatment," says AAUW member Mrs. Joseph Meites of East Lansing, "many people may not realize that the situation is different in the six state hospitals. Still, in other problem, according to Arthur E. Moore, Oakland County Probate Judge, is the large number on the waiting list — 137 on November 3, 1959.

The Joint Committee of AAUW and the Michigan Probate Judges Association points to specific ways in which this situation may be improved. One is separate facilities at the state hospitals, including 100-bed children's units at Northville, Pontiac, Ypsilanti and Traverse City State Hospitals, and the remodeling of the old Mary Muff facility at Kalamazoo State Hospital into a 100-bed children's unit. The Joint Committee is also supporting additional staff, especially trained to care for children, and better programming, including good school programs in the hospitals.

The 58 AAUW branches and the 100 probate judges will, according to the plan of the Joint Committee, work together to organize local groups to learn and understand and tell others of the needs of these mentally ill children in our state hospitals. Members of the Joint Committee, in addition to Judge Moore, Mrs. Latulip and Mrs. Meites, are Judge Gear Smith of Ionia, Judge Ivan Wheeler of Kalamazoo, Judge A. Dale Stopps of Grand Rapids, Judge Julian Hughes of St. Joseph, Judge Burke McClinic of Mt. Pleasant, Mrs. Douglas Woughter of Garden City, Miss Rachel Loughridge of Mt. Pleasant, Mrs. Harold Dickieson of Dearborn, Mrs. Edward O'Donnel of Detroit, and Dean Audrey Wilder of Albion.

Mining has long been and still is one of Michigan's greatest industries, worth $400 million a year in production value.

When production of sand and gravel is included, it can be said Michigan has mineral industries in all of its 83 counties. Some 60 percent of our mineral production, however, is concentrated in seven counties—Marquette, Wayne, Iron, Midland, Alpena, Gogebic and Ontonagon.

Historians are finally admitting that the 1844 discovery of iron ore at Negaunee in northern Michigan, was of far greater importance to the economic and industrial development of America than the California gold rush of the same era.

For the first 50 years of the Steel Age, and until the 1901 discovery of Minnesota's Mesabi range, we led the nation in the production of high grade iron ore. In the western half of the upper peninsula the only ore from which America made its steel.

Since then we have ranked second in the nation in output of iron ore.

In the upper peninsula, one of the nation's great treasures of raw materials, we are blessed with three great iron ore ranges... The Gogebic in Gogebic county... The Marquette in Marquette and Baraga counties... and the Menominee in Iron and Dickinson counties.

Our 36 active mines... both underground and open-pit... annually produce over 13,000,000 tons of iron ore a year, a volume which someone has said exceeds that produced in all of Russia. Ten iron mining companies are operating in Michigan.

Michigan's iron ore production in 1957 was valued at $110,605,000—slightly over a fourth of the total value of our mineral products output.

This rich yield of ore is shipped from the great ore ports of Marquette, Escanaba, and Ashland, Wis., the latter nearest the Gogebic range through the vital Saint Marie locks down the Great Lakes to Detroit and other Michigan steel centers as well as to mill cities in Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, New York and Pennsylvania.

By 1886 there were 60 mines on the three Michigan ranges, dominating the nation in output of ore. One of the Gogebic mines, the Gray Iron mine, was a 3,000-foot shaft, was once known as the deepest iron mine in the world. Some of our currently active mines have shafts which descend to a depth of 2,000 feet.

Copper mining is another of our great Michigan industries... with a tremendously fascinating story all its own. In Michigan we have the only commercially important deposits of native copper in the United States. Geologists have long regarded it as the most important deposit of its kind in the world.

Michigan was the greatest copper producing state in the union from 1847 to 1887.

Currently our production of copper centers in three upper peninsula counties—Houghton, Keweenaw, known as the "Copper Country," the oldest copper-producing district in America... and Ontonagon county, where the White Pine mine, Michigan's newest and largest copper mining property, is located.

Geologists say the White Pine ore body is the largest known copper reserve in America. Opening of the White Pine mine in 1955, at a cost of $90 million, more than doubled our Michigan copper production.

The 14 mines in our three-county copper areas... plus three reclamation plants for recovery of waste or tailings from earlier mill operations... produce around 115,000,000 pounds of copper a year... giving Michigan sixth rank in the nation in copper output.

Our Michigan copper mines drop down into the earth to unbelievable distances of 9,000 and even 9,500 feet—close to two miles deep.

Largest single moveable piece of metallic copper ever found in the world... a three-ton mass of pure copper... was discovered in Michigan in 1867, in Ontonagon county, and removed in 1887. Since 1858 it has been on display in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. This irregularly shaped boulder measures roughly 4 feet 3 inches by 3 feet 11 inches and is about 18 inches thick.

A letter from Mrs. Etta Phelps in Saginaw tells us of the death of former Grayling schools superintendent A. A. Ellsworth at his home in Watworth, Wisconsin, on January 22nd, 1960. He was 89 years old last October. Mr. Ellsworth was superintendent in Grayling when the old school building burned, and for a time after the new one was built. He has always been active in civic affairs—the Masonic lodge, and his church, until his death. He leaves his wife, a daughter, Leora, who is working with crippled children in the special school in LaCrosse, Wis., and two grandchildren. One daughter, Martha, died several years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Day were in Saginaw and Bay City Thursday, attending the state put on by the Kreschman Company and Consumers Power Company for restaurant owners and food handlers.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hassberger and son Richard of Saginaw were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Walker, coming for some winter sports. Young Richard is Mrs. Walker's godchild.

Mr. and Mrs. Rose Wolfe and son Kent left Thursday to spend the weekend in Lansing, where they visited the Walter Palmer family. John Braun spent from Wednesday to last Saturday in Detroit on business.

Not So Rosy . . .

Khrushchev's proposal for total world disarmament, made before the United Nations, drew headlines everywhere. It also drew an extremely mixed reaction, running the gamut from unstinted praise and support to the belief that it was a pure propaganda gesture designed to make the Soviets seem the lovers of peace and Western powers the potential war-mongers. Western leaders, for obvious reasons, viewed it with great skepticism.

Writing in The Reader's Digest, Francis Vivian Drake, the magazine's military editor of long standing, examines the question of what total disarmament would really mean. He deals, clearly and realistically, with the military facts of life as they exist today.

The great question, Mr. Drake observes, is this: "If we gave up all the weapons that now deter major aggression, would we and our children really be safer?" In the view of our leading military authorities, the dangers in total disarmament would be enormous. Our defense posture is almost entirely founded on atomic weapons — and scrapping these weapons is what the Soviets desire most of all, going by the Khrushchev proposal. We could not hope to rival Soviet land forces in size. Our Strategic Air Force would go, as would the Navy and all other military agencies. "In brief," says Mr. Drake, "we would be stripped of all power to prevent aggression."

Moreover, a second question enters here: "Could the process of total disarmament be adequately controlled and inspected?" The answer is No. There is no feasible means of preventing a country from secreting super-bombs to use when its opposing countries were disarmed and helpless. Mr. Drake again: "To make control and inspection utterly foolproof, not one secret hiding-place, not a cave, vault, deep forest, could remain unsuspected; and this not merely in the great stretches of the United States, Canada, Russia and China, but anywhere." In this connection, it is certainly significant that the Russians have been and still are extremely vague as to how and to what extent inspections would be carried out.

There is also a legal and moral side to the matter. We have mutual assistance treaties in force with 41 other countries. If we abandoned all our arms, we would have no means of backing up these solemn guarantees.

Going on, Mr. Drake asks another question: "Would the existing Soviet proposal really bring lasting peace?" His answer is chilling. If all the arms were gone, the democracies would still "face 900 million Communist-controlled Russians and Chinese, able to walk or drive across the whole of Europe, the Middle East and most of the Far East. . . . We and our neighbors of the Western Hemisphere would be the last survivors — but safe behind our oceans for only as long as it took the Communist to rearm with weapons to span those oceans."

Mr. Drake's big point is found in these words: "To be successful, total disarmament would require a true and complete brotherhood of man. But true brotherhood can be based only on trust. And what evidence of trust, or even humanity, can we find in the Communist record?" One absolute essential, before total disarmament can be even considered, is for the Soviet Union to show real evidence of a change of heart — by, say, freeing Hungary, and working to prevent Red China's aggressions.

But he does not find the outlook hopeless. It may be possible, he thinks, to reach some agreement for limited disarmament on a world-wide scale. It would be a gradual step by step approach. He writes at the end: "If we could lead the way in erecting an edifice of peace, built not overnight, but brick by brick, testing the strength of the structure as we climbed upward, we should have the best chance of emerging into the light at last."

Grayling's school manual training department has moved into its new quarters in the school building and is now finally located. The quarters is one of a series of building improvements that have been in progress for the past year. The manual training quarters are located in the southwest corner of the basement. Extensive excavation work had to be done, partitions and concrete floors built and finished. The building is a WPA project. Herbert Walther of Roscommon had charge of the work.

Simple but very pretty was the marriage service, Sunday, which united Miss Irene Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph, and Stanley Stephen of Lansing, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stephen. The young couple spoke their vows at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents.

before Rev. Edgar Flory, pastor of the Michelson Memorial church. Mr. and Mrs. George Granger, brother-in-law and sister of the groom, were the attending couple. Following the ceremony, the bride and groom, composed entirely of immediate relatives of the bride and groom, enjoyed a wedding dinner planned by Mrs. Randolph. Later in the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Stephan left for Lansing, where they will make their home. The bride is a graduate of Grayling High school in the class of 1932, and has always made her home in this city. Mr. Stephan completed High school here in 1929 and later graduated from the Pharmaceutical department of Ferris Institute at Big Rapids. During the past few years he has held a position with Muir's Drug Company, first at the Saginaw branch, later at Grand Rapids, and now at the Lansing store. The Avalanche joins the many friends in extending congratulations and best wishes to the young couple for a long and happily wedded life.

Friday night, Grayling's green-clad warriors eked out a 20-18 decision over a formidable Mancelona quintet — improve their standing in the Northern tier conference. The victory also brought them one notch nearer a 500-percentage mark which is their goal for the season. By whipping the Grayling reserves to the tune of 24-6, the boys from upstate took at least one victory home with them. The preliminary battle was a runaway from start to finish with the visitors doing all the scoring as the final count indicates.

Get the quiet proof of Chevrolet's superior performance on the road. No other car in the low-priced three can match the borne-on-the-wind sensation you get from a ride in the 1960 Chevrolet. But that's not surprising when you consider to what lengths Chevy has gone to provide for your comfort at no extra cost to you. As you drive, count the ways Chevrolet has been thoughtful:

Supple Full Coil suspension—Coil springs at all four wheels mold bumps as no other suspension can. Taking the punch out of rough roads is their only function—they don't have to anchor the rear axle.

Butyl rubber body mounts—Thicker, newly designed body mounts further insulate you from the road.

Body by Fisher—Only Chevy in its field offers the polish and craftsmanship of Body by Fisher.

Foam cushioned seats—Chevy offers foam cushioned seats in both front and rear in all series but one.

Hydraulic valve lifters—Oil hushed hydraulic valve lifters reduce engine noise to a whisper.

Cushioned steering shaft—A universal joint and cushioned coupling keep those annoying road tremors from the steering wheel.

Precision balanced wheels and tires—Here again Chevy has shown concern for your comfort by eliminating vibration in this vital area—tire life is longer, too.

Easy steering ratio—Chevy's high ratio Ball Race steering takes the work out of steering for you.

Superior weight distribution—Chevy rides better, handles better and stops better because the car's weight is more equally divided between the front and rear wheels.

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS

Short Or Tall—What's The Difference?

By C. D. Smith

TALL PEOPLE GET THE MOST OPPORTUNITIES!

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: "Could not resist the opportunity... to answer regarding these over sensitive tall teenagers, and tall people, but you were too polite. We find that most tall men and women are temperamental crybabies. Generally, being tall is a great asset in life, as millions of short men would give anything to be tall, as most opportunities are given to tall people, not only in the business world, but in social life. SHORT BUT TOLERANT."

We cannot quite bring ourselves to agree with you, Short But Tolerant, when you say that the most opportunity in life goes to tall people.

The prime advantage that we can see in being tall is that you can usually see over the heads of those in front when you stand in a crowd or sit in a movie. And this doesn't always work. Sometimes someone just a bit taller sits or stands in front of you.

While we don't hold too much stock with the idea that "I felt bad about the loss of my fingers until I saw a man who had lost his arm"... it is a simple fact of life that no matter what size we might be, or how poor, we are never in a class by ourselves. Someone is richer. Someone else is more destitute.

We must go back to what we said in the original column. The measure of a man is never from the top of his head to the sole of his shoes. The true measure of any person lies in the heart and in the mind. You can use a tape to measure a man for a suit, but this measurement gives you no indication whatsoever of his character, talent, courage or ability.

We agree that teenagers may be too sensitive about being short or tall, but we still do not think that being one or the other constitutes a serious handicap. "Little" men like Ben Hogan showed that size has nothing to do with becoming a "big" name in sports. It is the same in the world of business. Men short in stature, but long on ability and initiative have worked their way to the top in many fields. Tall men who make the grade in one activity or another never do it on size alone. Even in the game of basketball, where the emphasis is on height, that tall man won't play regularly unless he can dribble, run, shoot and score.

Being tall or short is a handicap only if one makes it so.

If we have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to add, please write to: FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL CITY, OHIO. We will publish your letter.

Interred, certified or ordinary mail (with proof of mailing), or by personal service at least fourteen (14) days prior to such hearing.

REPORT LAKE TROUT FISHING CAN BE RESTORED IN 10 YEARS

MANCELONA — The proposed Federal fish hatchery in the Jordan Valley area of the Pigeon River State Forest today had the endorsement of the Northern Michigan Development Council, which passed a resolution urging early construction of the hatchery at a meeting here Monday. The site was selected by the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service and the Great Lakes Fish Commission, Myron Riggs, Council President said.

All directors of the Council except one voted in favor of the project. Charles Welch did not vote due to the fact that as a director of the Council he also is an official of the Dept. of Conservation. With the end of the lamprey eel menace in sight, Mackinac lake trout fishing will be realized 40 years sooner as result of the hatchery, according to officials of the State Dept. of Conservation and the Great Lakes Fish Commission.

After more than a decade exploring methods of destroying the lamprey eel, the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service and the Dept. of Conservation claim Dowpon, a new chemical developed by Dow Chemical Co. scientists is the answer to the problem of how to destroy the lamprey and yet not destroy fish.

Great Lakes Fish Commission and Conservation Dept. officials say the Jordan Valley hatchery will restock Lake Trout in the Great Lakes in 10 years. Without the hatchery it may require 50 years, they claim.

The hatchery which will cost between one million and 1 1/2 million dollars and employ a staff of 12 is proposed for construction in 1961. Endorsement of the Jordan Valley site by the Northern Michigan Development Council which represents 33 Northern Michigan Counties was considered a boost for the project. The Council's approval occurred after its Natural Resources committee, headed by Orville Walker, Alba, studied the proposal and inspected the site. The Council's decision was announced at its February meeting held yesterday.

The Jordan Valley site, about nine miles northwest of Mancelona is favored by the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service and the Great Lakes Fish Commission as the best site for the hatchery. The Commission which is a joint U. S. and Canadian body said the J-V site will produce about 30 per cent more trout than the second best location in the U. S. which is in Wisconsin. The site was selected following a survey of the Great Lakes region. Important elements in the Jordan Valley streams and ideal water temperatures were the two most important factors which put the Michigan site at the top of the list.

Construction of the hatchery by the Federal Government is expected to start as soon as title to the state-owned Jordan Valley site is transferred to the Federal Government. The Conservation Commission is expected to act on it at a meeting in April.

Two million trout will be provided by the rest of the United States and all of Canada.

Conservation Dept. officials who were present at the Council meeting were: Harry Aldrich, Mar Hunt, Charles Welch and Justin Leonard. C. Troy Yoder represented the Great Lakes Fish Commission.

Directors of the Council present for the meeting were: Alexander Press, Midwestern Broadcasting Co.; Art Koller, Forest Products Co.; Don Setterbo, Consultant, Central Mich. University; Harry Gerber, Gerber Products Co.; Ray Payberg, Gerber Products Co.; Art Rouse, Pres., House Oil Co.; Bob Hilly, Division Mgr., Consumers Power Co.; Charles Welch, Educational Supervisor, Dept. of Conservation; Orville Walker, Market Specialist, Mich. State University and Myrt Riggs, Council President.

Others included State Senator John Minnow, State Representative Arnell Engstrom; Ron Meeder, Forestry Comm., Antrim County; Wm. Swoboda, East Jordan banker; Art Biehl, Antrim County Road Commissioner; John Shoemaker, Kalkaska.

Writers present representing press, radio and TV were Marshall Sayles, Marguerite Gahagan, Cy Dolzel, Pete Murdick and Greg Smith.
